Fort Gaines 200 is a non-profit 501c3 formed to commemorate 200 years of history the Lower Chattahoochee Trace. This year's event supports creation of a traditional Creek Indian Village at Frontier Village, the historic park on the Chattahoochee River Bluff overlooking Alabama. The Village is home to authentic early 1800's cabins and outbuildings and a replica Frontier Fort.

When General Edmund Gaines and his troops arrived in 1816, native Creek Indians inhabited the area. Fort Gaines 200 celebrates Native Americans of the region by recreating a Creek Village for education and entertainment.

Please help us spread the word: like us on FaceBook, follow us on Twitter & check out www.fortgaines200.com.

Historic Fort Gaines, Georgia is located on the Bluff of the famous Chattahoochee River approximately 75 miles down River from Columbus. Two miles North of town is Walter F. George Lake. The Lake occupies an impressive 85 miles of the Chattahoochee River, separating Alabama and Georgia with 48,000 acres of fresh water perfect for boating, fishing, skiing and swimming. Also, with 640 miles of shoreline, 13 Corps of Engineers day use parks and four adjoining campgrounds, the Lake is an ideal place for camping, outdoor and water-related activities. The Lake is famous for it's world record bass and it's natural beauty.
